Fatal hit-and-run in Mck

MAD RIVER UNION
MCKINLEYVILLE – A pedestrian was killed in a hit-and-run traffic collision Saturday morning, May 19 on Central Avenue south of Bella Vista Road in McKinleyville.

Clinton Eugene Deckert II, 47, of McKinleyville was walking north on the east shoulder of Central Avenue at about 7:28 a.m. when he was struck by a 1977 Toyota Rav4 driven by Shaia Marie Bianco, 25, also of McKinleyville. Bianco was driving northbound.

Before the collision, Bianco “made an unsafe turn and turned the Toyota to the right,” stated a press release from the California Highway Patrol. “This resulted in the Toyota driving onto the shoulder and colliding into Deckert.”

“After the collision, Bianco fled the scene at a high rate of speed, continuing to drive north towards town. Deckert was pronounced deceased at the scene,” stated the press release. “Within less than an hour time, Bianco called Humboldt Communications Center and stated she was the driver of the Toyota. Bianco was contacted and arrested for suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol/drugs.”

Due to the collision, Central Avenue was closed for about an hour and 20 minutes.

“The California Highway Patrol would like to thank all that assisted with this investigation including but not limited to the many good Samaritans who provided essential information, Arcata Fire District, California Department of Transportation, Humboldt State University Police Department and the Humboldt County Coroner’s Office,” stated the press release.

Anyone with additional information should contact the CHP at (707) 822-5981.

Hemp | What rules for Humboldt hemp farmers?

clude hemp at this point but there’s concern that hemp growers might evade the county’s cannabis permitting fees and taxes – and its regulations – by opting for a state registration system.

Supervisors previously voted to enact a 45-day moratorium on hemp production which ended on May 17.

Most supervisors supported extending the hemp moratorium for six months to allow planning staff time to develop regulations. But that action needed a four-fifths majority vote and Bass’s absence created a dilemma when Supervisor Steve Madrone indicated that he didn’t support extending the moratorium.

As supervisors discussed it, the differing uses and scales of hemp production were questioned.

Supervisor Estelle Fennell said it will take time to clarify how hemp should be regulated.

She said that the hemp that’s been “produced very significantly” in the county is “tied to the cannabis plant and is more on that medicinal marijuana spectrum.”

Hemp is included in the federal farm bill but Fennell said it’s uncertain whether medicinal CBD cultivation is included in it. She said there’s heavy investment in CBD production but “it’s still very, very gray in terms of definition – and that’s something that we’ve run into before in the cannabis world, is those gray areas.”

If grown as a row crop, hemp production absorbs large tracts of farmland. Medicinal CDB production is done at a smaller scale and some permitted Humboldt County cultivators are producing both psychoactive and non-psychoactive cannabis.

But farmers whose focus is THC-dominant cannabis are concerned about expanding hemp production due to the potential for cross-pollination.

There’s also market potential. During public comment, supervisors were told that CBD products from Oregon producers are being sold in California, including in Humboldt, because they have less overhead costs and are cheaper.

Upholding bags of CBD-dominant cannabis from California and Oregon, Mark Switzer of Palo Verde Farms suggested that absorbing hemp into the county’s fee- and tax-oriented regulations will make local hemp economically unfeasible.

“If I take this (locally-produced) cannabis right here and I go to the local (dispensary) to sell it, they price it against this (Oregon) cannabis here,” he said. “They’re importing this at $40 to $60 a pound and my taxes are $144 a pound, so that immediately puts me out of business.”

Switzer described the cross-pollination reasoning as “fraud.” But Terra Carver of the Humboldt County Growers Association spoke of the “public trust when it comes to the genetic library of cannabis in the region.”

She urged supervisors to ban pollen-producing hemp in the county, because “if you do, it would essentially be clear-cutting the Amazon of cannabis.”

As the only supervisor who didn’t support extending the hemp ban, Madrone said he’s “very concerned about our economy and the opportunities that are going to be missed by continuing this for six months.” He added that it will more likely take a year to devise regulations.

Nor does he support folding hemp into the county’s existing ordinance. “Because I would rather roll that back and provide opportunities for small farmers of 2,000 square feet or less,” he said.

“I would just point out, though, that if we don’t do (a moratorium), there is no middle ground,” said Supervisor Mike Wilson, adding that the process of regulation will take time and “the alternative is to just let ‘er rip and see what happens.”

Since the moratorium extension couldn’t be approved without a fourth yes vote, supervisors chose to direct planning staff to work on modifying the county’s cannabis ordinance to address industrial hemp and CDB flower.

Considering the moratorium’s end, supervisors also directed staff to return to this week’s meeting, on May 21, with another hemp moratorium ordinance.

JCF grow | Setbacks ❖ FROM A1

Environmental Services Director Mark Andre said the city is on record as opposing grows in TPZ zones. The city had also recommended a 1,000-foot buffer between parklands and grows, but the county went with 600 feet.

The matter was considered at a meeting of the FMC last Thursday, but no conclusions were reached because the meeting had to end so another group could use Council Chamber. A second meeting was scheduled for Tuesday, after the Union went to press. Andre said a recommendation in favor of the 600-foot setback was likely to result.

The City of Arcata and other property owners adjacent to the Emerald Coast Genetics grow would not have been formally notified of the cultivation permit application until just prior to the matter coming before the county Planning Commission. But the city got wind of the matter and held the FMC meetings to develop a recommendation.

“Our main concerns are any kind of development next to the forest boundary,” Andre said. “We want to make sure it’s solid in terms of protecting the public interest, and it comes down to how big the setback should be.”

The JCF was funded in part by the state Wildlife Conservaton Board, Andre said, “so we feel like it’s our obligation to defend it against adjacent activities that could compromise it.”

That includes potential impacts on wildlife habitat. The JCF is home to Northern Spotted owls, which are listed as threatened by the state and federal government. The FMC has been concerned about cumulative impacts from development close to city forestlands, especially cannabis production, which can include use of herbicides, pesticides and rodenticides and create erosion and other problems.

“I don’t think this one had a legacy of issues with rodenticides, but we’re just trying to protect the public forest,” Andre said. He said the city will assess the site with state forestry officials to make sure no trees were cut on public land to establish the formerly illegal grow.

FMC member Michael Furniss confirmed that the group is likely to recommend the dealbreaking 600-foot buffer. While he acknowledged the situation was a “tough one,” the city has to protect the JCF under the terms that made it possible, and the forest’s sustainability has is the highest priority.

“When the city seeks funds for acquiring conservation lands, we make promises to the funders that we will do all we can to protect these places,” Furniss said. “We consider those promises sacrosanct.”

“The biggest threat and impact to forests in California is conversion to non-forest,” Furniss continued. “The FMC has long been opposed to using forest lands zoned TPZ for the production of farm commodities that are much better located and operated in agricultural areas, where the soils are much better and the infrastructure supports commodity production, and not carved out of poorly-suited forested lands because of a perverse need to ‘hide’ these operations.”

The Humboldt Kinetic Grand Championship this weekend

MAD RIVER UNION
HUMBOLDT – The Humboldt Kinetic Grand Championship begins Saturday, May 25 on the Arcata Plaza and continues through Monday, May 27, ending in Ferndale. The three-day race spans more than 40 miles and includes rolling sculptures passing over roadways, dunes, beaches, trails and even a water crossing on Humboldt Bay.

Racers will gather Saturday morning, May 25 on the Arcata Plaza for a pre-race check. At noon, the siren sounds and the racers make their way to State Route 255 and on to Manila.

Racers will gather for a festival at the Manila Community Center before descending Dead Man's Drop as they race through miles of sand. Eventually, they'll cross the Samoa Bridge and end the first day at Halvorsen Park.

On Sunday, May 26, the racers will enter Humboldt Bay, make a water crossing, and then hump their way up Hook-ton Hill Road, then camp at Crab Park. On Monday, May 27, they'll cross the Eel River under Fernbridge and make their way to the finish line in Ferndale.

Jennifer Weiss has been involved in the world of Kinetics for more than a decade. Read on to get a peek behind the Kinetic curtain!
Union: What is the name of your float gang/team/squad? Are you a founder? How did you get involved?
Weiss: Our team name changes every year. This year we are called Space Force. In previous years we have been Kinetic Encounters of the Fiftieth Kind, Planet X, Planet Nine, Shells Angels, Blue Oyster Cult, Athlete's Foot, Big Foot, The New-lydeads, and Dia de los Tacos.
My husband and co-captain, Billy Pin-nix, and I co-founded the team 10 years ago. I got involved with the Kinetic Race after volunteering for the Haunted Kinetic Lab of Horrors which is the annual fund-raiser for the Kinetic Sculpture Lab.
I love haunted houses and I thought 'those kinetic people are so clever and creative, I bet their haunted house is awesome!' After a couple years of volunteering there we were invited to join Duane Flat-mo's team as pilots, first at the Corvallis, Ore., race followed by the grand championship here in Humboldt County. We raced with Duane for 3 years before forming our own team. This will be our 10th year as our own team and our 13th race overall.

Union: How much work is involved? Any suggestions for someone who is a newb and wants to be in the race?
Weiss: There can be a lot of work involved - it depends on how much you want to do. If you are building a chassis and art from scratch, you have your work cut out for you! What I'd suggest to a newb is to start by joining an existing team first to see what it's like. Figure out what it is you are drawn to... are you an engineer? Do you want to build the machine? Are you more interested in designing the art and costumes? Team up with others. Lots of people build art on existing chassis' which are no longer being used too. That way it's a lot less work.
Union: What aspect is most rewarding and/or fun?
Weiss: Rule #1 is to have fun. I love being in random places along the course where I wouldn't normally go. It cracks me up when tourists or people who don't know about the race happen upon us along the course - the looks on their faces are priceless. When we are out there, it feels like we are pioneers or explorers. Our county is so beautiful and it is a great way to see and appreciate the landscape. (Also, we are super slow.) I especially love when we are feeling challenged by a breakdown or having a hard time for some reason and a spectator yells or drives by with encouraging words (FOR THE GLORY!) It helps!!
Union: Why do you keep doing it?
Weiss: I have nothing better to do. (It's adult daycare.)

GAMES & GLORY
TRILOBITE CARNIVAL Two time Kinetic Grand Champion TriloBike is back to take a run for a third win in a row with the TriloBike Carnival. This years' entry is a fully interactive carnival with games and glory. This is the sixth year in the race for team captain Steve McHaney and he has worked with his band of peons to craft new themes and new art every year. The TriloBike Carnival has proven to be the most ambitious undertaking yet and the intrepid crew of carnival barkers are ready to create Kinetic Thrills for all. See your future with Hobart the fortune teller, get your tickets from his arch nemesis the Dastardly Razooley, find your potential for romance with the kinetic love tester, try your luck at the fortune wheel, and play TriloHook, Trilo-Toss, and TriloBall right on the machine. And when you get hungry, the friendly crew will have popcorn for you as well.

Hikers saved from bathroom after tent flies away

HUMBOLDT COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE
GOLD BLUFFS BEACH – On May 16 at about 1 a.m., Humboldt County Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the Gold Bluffs Beach area in Northern Humboldt for the report of four stranded hikers.
The subjects told dispatchers that the group had hiked several miles from their vehicle to camp on the beach.
However, due to stormy weather conditions, the group's tent blew away and the subjects had become stranded without shelter.
As deputies responded to the area, the group was able to hike a trail to the Gold Bluffs Beach Campground and take shelter in a public restroom facility.
Deputies located the four hikers, who were cold but in good condition, and transported the group back to their vehicle without further incident.
The Humboldt County Sheriff's Office would like to offer a few tips for those choosing to camp or hike in our county:
• Always hike with a group, or at least one other person, and stay together.
• Check the weather forecast before heading out to hike or camp and plan your trip accordingly.
• Know your skill level and physical capabilities-choose trails within your or your group's ability.
• Inform someone of your travel plans-let them know where you are going, your planned route, when you plan to return and emergency numbers to call if you do not return at the scheduled time.
• Bring a charged cell phone with you in case of emergencies, but do not rely on cell service in all areas.
• Bring a flashlight, warm clothes, high energy snacks and water, in case your hike goes longer than expected.
• If you get lost, stop where you are and assess the situation. Try to determine your location. If you are sure you can get yourself out using a map and compass, do so – otherwise stay put.

Arcata Fire, carbon monoxide alarm save lives

ARCATA FIRE
McKINLEYVILLE – On the evening of Tuesday, May 14, Arcata Fire District was dispatched to an alarm activating in an apartment complex in McKinleyville.
Upon arrival, the engine company met with the reporting party and was directed to an unoccupied apartment that was under renovation. An audible alarm was sounding within the apartment.
Arcata Fire forced entry and quickly identified the alarm to be a carbon monoxide alarm/detector activation.
Carbon monoxide levels inside the apartment were detected to be far above acceptable levels.
Fire personnel shut off all natural gas service to the apartment and ventilated the affected unit.
Occupants of adjacent apartments were contacted and carbon monoxide was also found in the upstairs apartment.
Ventilation efforts continue throughout the entire apartment complex. Upon completion of ventilation, carbon monoxide levels were nonexistent.
Early notification by tenants and quick action taken by Arcata Fire personnel eliminated a potential multi-casualty event.
CO – not your friend
Carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless and tasteless gas. At sustained high levels, it is considered toxic and potentially deadly.
Residences with fuel burning appliances are required to have a carbon monoxide alarm/detector installed on each floor of the residence to notify occupants of potential toxic concentration levels.
If a carbon monoxide alarm/detector activates, call 911 and evacuate to clean air immediately.
Carbon monoxide alarms/detectors should be mounted per manufacturer's instructions.
Smoke Alarms/Detectors are also required in all residential houses, apartments and duplexes; they should be installed in each sleeping room, common areas outside sleeping rooms, and common rooms other than kitchens and bathrooms.

Coast Guard promotes safe boating as incidents rise

U.S. COAST GUARD
MCKINLEYVILLE – The Coast Guard, Coast Guard Auxiliary and the National Safe Boating Council are promoting safe boating practices during the upcoming boating and fishing season in communities surrounding Eureka, Fort Bragg, Crescent City, Redding and Ukiah, given the recent increase in search and rescue cases.
The public will notice increased air and boat law enforcement patrols in the coming days.
“In the event of a capsizing emergency, mariners are advised to remain with their vessel,” said Lt. Commander Gabriel Vigil, spokesperson for Coast Guard Sector Humboldt Bay. “It is easier for rescuers to locate a large object in the water than it would be for a person. If you see someone in trouble in the water, stay on the shore and call 911 or Coast Guard rescue at (707) 839-6113. Do not enter the water or you could end up being a victim as well.”
According to uscgboating.org, in 2017 the Coast Guard confirmed more than 4,200 accidents resulting in 658 deaths, 2,629 injuries, and more than $46 million in reported damages to property.
“Wearing a life vest during water activities is especially important for children. With Northern California's cold ocean, and swift flowing snow melt rivers, cold water paralysis can set in within minutes making swimming impossible,” said Vigil.
Alcohol use is the leading known contributing factor in fatal boating accidents.
Where cause of death was known, 76 percent of fatal boating accident victims drowned.

Planners: ‘There’s no such thing as affordable housing’

Daniel Mintz
MAD RIVER UNION

HUMBOLDT – Faced with a shortfall of low income housing, county planners are considering alternative types such as tiny houses and driving down costs by having the county pay for improvements rather than developers.

The longstanding dilemma of providing housing for the county’s lower-income residents dominated discussion as the Planning Commission considered an eight-year housing plan at its May 16 meeting.

The Housing Element is a state-mandated element of the General Plan Update that describes how the county will meet housing needs. As the commission reviewed the plan’s policies and implementation measures, low income housing emerged as a challenge.

The element’s implementations include changing zoning to allow alternative housing types and initiatives such as a “safe parking” pilot program for those who live in their vehicles.

But more conventional measures such as encouraging multifamily housing development were described as impractical due to the high costs of permitting, utility hook-ups and making infrastructure improvements.

Commissioner Peggy O’Neill related that she knows of one case where the mere conversion of a garage into a secondary residential unit had racked up $13,000 of permitting-related costs and “they haven’t even put any materials into it yet.”

She added that the term “affordable housing” is a “misnomer,” as housing construction is too expensive to produce it unless it’s subsidized.

The phrase “there’s no such thing as affordable housing” was occasionally repeated by commissioners throughout the discussion.

After a public comment period that included warnings of increased homelessness and inadequate housing supply leading to the exodus of younger residents, commissioners considered the dynamics of the situation.

Commissioner Alan Bongio, who is a developer, said he could recall only two subdivisions coming before the commission in the last four years. “The bigger problem that we have in Humboldt County is that there’s nobody developing anymore,” he continued. “There’s no money left in it, everything gotten too expensive and there’s nobody taking up the charge.”

Saying that the county aided development decades ago by paying for street, sidewalk and other improvements, he told planning staff that the county again needs to relieve developers of it.

“You guys either need to take charge of it and lead it, or get out of the way,” Bongio said.

He recommended that the county do “the hard, on-the-ground improvements” that are making housing development too costly for builders.

The idea gained some traction among commissioners, with pursuit of grants cited as a potential means of realizing it.

O’Neill said the City of Arcata has “done a good job of developing projects that are a little more innovative.” Funding is available, she added, but collaboration between government and those who do the building needs to be enhanced.

Commissioner Melanie McCavour said grants for infrastructure and housing are “very generous right now.”

Summing up the discussion, Commissioner Noah Levy said, “It looks like we’re all looking for ways, without imagining magic pots of money appearing, to remove impediments wherever we can and invest in getting housing wherever we can with the resources we have.”

The intent is also to “include targeted ideas for populations that maybe haven’t been targeted in the past,” he added.

The county’s track record in producing low income housing is indeed sluggish. In the last Housing Element cycle, from 2014 to 2018, the projected need for very low and low income housing in unincorporated areas was 212 and 135 units respectively.

But building permits for only 36 units of very low income housing and 61 low income units were issued.

The planning is driven by a Regional Housing Needs Assessment (RHNA) that projects demand for various housing categories and allots shares. The RHNA for the 2019 to 2027 Housing Element calls for charting a total of 1,416 units in the county unincorporated area.

Of the total, 351 units are in the very low income category and 223 are in the low income category.

Considering the commentary on taking better advantage of grant funding opportunities, Planning Director John Ford told commissioners that it’s an area his department will place greater focus on.

“We totally hear you about the need to manage the grants,” he said.

Commissioners voted to continue the hearing to the June 6 meeting, when a full draft of the Housing Element will be reviewed.

Memorial Day ceremony

MAD RIVER UNION

HUMBOLDT – Amidst all the Memorial Day festivities in Humboldt County, it’s easy to forget the original reason for the holiday – to honor those who have died while serving in the United States military.

This year for Memorial Day weekend the Arcata Veterans Hall, American Legion Post 274, American Legion Post 274 Women’s Auxiliary, Veteran of Foreign Wars Post 2542; Craig Lemster, Boy Scout Troop 9; Girl Scout Troop - Redwood Services McKinleyville/Arcata; Pastor Chuck Clark of the Wesleyan Church of the Redwoods, McKinleyville, the Mad River Community Honor Guard, and the Greenwood Cemetery would like to invite the public to participate in our annual Memorial Day activities to honor those who have given their lives for the United States.

On Friday, May 24 at 8 a.m.. at Greenwood Cemetery volunteers will be putting flags at the gravesites of all veterans at the cemetery.

On Monday, May 27 at 8 a.m. volunteers will put several bigger flags around the perimeter of the cemetery.

Afterward at 11 a.m. they will conduct a Memorial Day ceremony with the honor of having Aviation Maintenance Master Chief L. Katy Brown as the guest speaker for the event. The Gettysburg Address will be conducted by Boy Scout Senior Patrol Leader First Class Jeshua Cloney, and immediately following is the raising of the flag to full staff.

Everyone in the community is more than welcome to participate.

TAP ROOM A groundbreaking ceremony was held May 13 for the Bigfoot Taproom at 1751 Central Avenue in McKinleyville just north of the CVS Pharmacy. Humboldt Bay ‘site of hemispheric importance’

HUMBOLDT STATE

HUMBOLDT BAY – A 2018 survey that counted more than half a million shorebirds on Humboldt Bay has led a conservation group to upgrade the bay’s status as a critical habitat for dozens of species of migrating and regional shorebirds.

The Western Hemisphere Shorebird Reserve Network (WHSRN) identifies sites of importance to the conservation of shorebird species, and works to develop science and management tools to conserve the sites.

Looking to get an updated understanding of bird activity on Humboldt Bay, HSU Wildlife Professor Mark Colwell conducted a six-week survey last spring, counting at least 500,000 birds around the bay.

That window of time saw western sandpipers and other shorebirds stop at the bay during their migration from as far as Peru to Alaska.

Those staggering numbers led WHSRN to re-assess Humboldt Bay’s status, and earlier this month the group announced that the body of water is now considered a “Site of Hemispheric Importance.”

The designation can help improve conservation through education, good governance, restoration efforts and other efforts.

Colwell and local citizen scientists, including many students, continue to conduct shorebird surveys on Humboldt Bay to gain a better understanding of how migrating and regional birds use the bay year-round.

Creep exposes himself, makes inappropriate comments

EUREKA POLICE

EUREKA – In the last week, the Eureka Police Department has investigated two separate incidents involving a male subject driving up to juveniles, exposing himself and making inappropriate comments.

The first incident occurred on Friday, May 17 and the second occurred on Sunday, May 19. Both happened around 5 p.m. and were in the areas of Zane Middle School and Eureka High School.

The suspect vehicle was described as a “banged up” gray, brown, or gold sedan. The suspect was described as a white male adult, in his late 20s to 40s, with short brown hair, and a brown beard.

In addition to our extra patrol efforts of these areas, the Eureka Police Department is seeking the public’s assistance to identify and locate the suspect. Anyone with information regarding this investigation is asked to contact the Eureka Police Department at (707) 441-4060 (option/ext. 3).

Sheriff seeks help locating 4-year-old Orick girl

Humboldt County Sheriff’s Office

ORICK – The Humboldt County Sheriff’s Office needs the public’s help to locate a missing 4-year-old girl.

Ariana Bemis-Eib, 4, of Orick, was reported missing by her father on May 15 at about 8:30 p.m. after she failed to return from a scheduled visitation with her mother.

According to her father, on May 14 at about 8 p.m. Bemis-Eib went on an overnight custody visitation with her mother, 37-year-old Delisse Lalee Jones. Jones failed to bring Bemis-Eib to daycare the following morning, as previously agreed upon as terms of the visitation.

Delisse Lalee Jones

A vehicle associated with Jones was located nearby her last known residence in the Eureka area. Attempts to contact Jones have been unsuccessful.

This case is being investigated as a child custody concealment case. Jones does not have legal custody of Bemis-Eib and is in violation of a custody order.

Ariana Bemis-Eib is described as a white female child, approximately 3 feet 6 inches tall, 50 pounds, with blue eyes and dirty blonde hair.

Delisse Lalee Jones is described as a white female adult, approximately 5 feet 11 inches tall, 215 pounds, with blue eyes and brown hair.

Jones is believed to be associated with a 1997 Green Chevy pick up truck, with a California license plate of 7Z43180. Anyone who sees Bemis-Eib or Jones should contact 9-1-1. Anyone with information for the Sheriff’s Office regarding the two’s possible whereabouts should call the Humboldt County Sheriff’s Office at (707) 445-7251.

MCKINLEYVILLE TOWN CENTER An event titled “McKinleyville Town Center Conversation” will take place on Thursday, May 23 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at the McKinleyville Pop-Up Museum, located at 1520 City Center Rd. at the McKinleyville Shopping Center. The event is hosted by the museum. The Humboldt County Planning Department is creating an ordinance which would set the rules for development in an area now designated as the McKinleyville Town Center. The area was designated as a town center in the McKinleyville Community Plan, approved by the Board of Supervisors in 2002. However, an ordinance was never created to enact the development rules for a town center. The idea for the town center is to create a pedestrian friendly area which shops and residences connected by trails, with an area where residents can meet and gather for various events.

Jailing | Treatment a priority

they get worse and sometimes they have permanent damage.”

Later, Ash reported that the county has joined the nationwide Stepping Up Initiative, which calls for “action plans” that outline what will be done to steer mentally ill people away from jails and into treatment.

He said the Department of Health and Human Services and Probation Department are leading a local collaboration on the county’s plan.

Housing is another area that the report targets for improvement. Ash noted the development of the Arcata Bay Crossing housing complex, which includes 15 MHSA-funded units for the chronically homeless.

“But if we had 100, we could have filled them,” Ash said.

The report recommends doing an inventory of available housing and setting a long term goal to meet needs.

Youth programs and substance abuse treatment programs are also priorities that have benefitted from MHSA funding. But Ash said that the state has undercut its capacity by substituting it for other forms of funding.

He said that at one point, MHSA money was 10 percent of the state’s overall spending on behavioral health programs and now it’s 24 percent.

If not for that, “We would have had millions (of dollars) more in the county,” he continued.

But he also noted numerous “positive things.” Mobile crisis response, rapid re-housing, helping transition-aged youth and the county’s volunteer-driven Hope Center are among the programs funded through the MHSA. Supervisors noted the importance of crisis response services. Board of Supervisors Chair Rex Bohn told Ash that “there was a person in the lobby today, who was obviously in despair.”

A mental health services staff member told supervisors that the county will continue to do community outreach to make people aware that clinician teams are available to respond to crisis situations.

Supervisors were also told that the Department of Health and Human Services has an ongoing partnership with schools. But during public comment, Southern Humboldt Unified School District Boardmember Thomas Mulder said SoHum “has not seen the support we need” and the need has intensified as families deal with cannabis-related code enforcement actions.

“With this abatement issue going on, there are many families that are experiencing poverty or financial stress that they aren’t accustomed to and there are a lot more children acting up,” he said. “I just want you to be aware, when it’s said that the schools are getting the support they need, it’s not completely accurate.”

The county is stepping up its collaboration with the school system. A $5.2 million grant is being used for partnering with the Humboldt County Office of Education to establish school-based teams of mental health clinicians in each region of the county.

ter Linda Larkin's speech about 40-year veteran Beverly Biggs, the audience of more than 150 people gave her a standing ovation. Joe Sousa has been with the hospital for 30 years. He stumbled upon the job when he brought his brother in for a short stay surgery and happened to ask the kitchen if there were any openings. The rest is history. Shaw referenced Sousa as a "family man" and remembers seeing him drive his van down Highway 101 with his four small kids in tow to hit up wrestling matches all along the West Coast. MRCH also announced its Employee of the Year, Matt Kinnick. Kinnick, who was nominated for Employee of the Month in September 2018, expressed appreciation for his "phenomenal coworkers" and said he could see why MRCH is loved by the community and was awarded the Best Hospital for 2019. MRCH recently earned accreditation from the American Osteopathic Association Healthcare Facilities Accreditation Program (HFAP). Accreditation by HFAP demonstrates that a health care facility has met the standards set forth by HFAP to provide high quality care and compliance with governmental regulations for Medicare and Medicaid Services. "We are committed to providing the very best care for our patients and our staff had a wonderful opportunity to shine," said Pamela Floyd, director of Risk and Compliance at MRCH. The surveyors conducted a thorough review of the hospital's services, staff, patient care and facilities. "Congratulations to the entire Mad River Healthcare Family on a job well done," Floyd said.

Ferndale's Mamma Mia! is ridiculously charming

Having watched the 2008 movie version of Mamma Mia!, I was hesitant to sit through the Ferndale Repertory Theatre's production of the musical. How many ABBA songs in a row can a man endure? But the wife insisted, so off we went Saturday night to Ferndale for an evening of music written by the 1970s Swedish pop band and arranged for a juke-box musical set on a Greek island.

A glass of red wine in hand, I took my seat and braced myself for the production. Was this going to be an uncomfortably awkward experience, like being plunged into a bachelorette party or a baby shower? Fortunately, not at all.

The Ferndale Repertory Theater's Mamma Mia! is ridiculously charming. The cast gives it their all. They sing and dance with heart.

This romantic comedy is about bride-to-be Sophie Sheridan (played flawlessly by Alyssa Plante) and her search for the identity of her father. Seeking answers she reads her mother's diary entries written during the time she was conceived. She narrows down her potential father to three men who dated her mother 21 years ago. Without telling her mother, Sophie invites the three men to her wedding.

And there's the setup for an evening of laughs, laments and misunderstandings, all arranged around hit ABBA tunes, including Honey, Honey, Dancing Queen, Voulez Vous and more.

According to the playbill, Plante is back on stage for her first production with Ferndale Rep after having taken a long break from performing. She was the real standout in the production, beautifully belting out the ABBA songs without missing a note. Others in the cast had a few wobbly moments, but that just added to the NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. T-SHIRT HELP

The Godwit Days festival is thinking about creating a child-sized T-shirt that would feature several winning designs from this year's Student Bird Art Contest. The shirts would be sold starting at next year's 25th anniversary festival. The Godwit Days Board is asking the public to help decide what would make an attractive shirt motif. Between now and June 16, stop by the Arcata Marsh Interpretive Center and vote. All cash prize winners from 2019 are on display for you to peruse. Rather than picking the most skillful renditions of birds, your main evaluation criteria should be what would 1) translate well into being printed on a T-shirt and 2) be most appealing to younger children to wear. One vote per person, please!

Specific directions are given in the wall display. The Interpretive Center is located at 569 South G Street in Arcata. Open hours are Tuesday through Sunday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday, 1 to 5 p.m.

MARSH TOUR Friends of the Arcata Marsh (FOAM) is sponsoring a free tour of the Arcata Marsh & Wildlife Sanctuary on Saturday, June 1 at 2 p.m. Meet leader Elliott Dabill at the Interpretive Center on South G Street for a 90-minute walk focusing on the ecology of the Marsh. Loaner binoculars available with photo ID. For more information, call (707) 826-2359.

Bomb-proof pups enter Kinetic race

Sparky the Kinetic Foster Dog will be riding in the Kinetic Sculpture Race again this weekend! Sparky will be accompanied by several adoptable dogs at the Arcata Plaza on Saturday.

These will be what we think of as the bomb-proof dogs, as there usually are several thousand onlookers at the start of the race! Look for the colorfully dressed dogs following the eight-foot-tall black and white dog sculpture and come say hi. Several dogs have found their families right there on the Plaza over the last few years!

Here are two dogs that haven't braved the crowds yet, but we have other ways for you to meet them.

Willow is a lovely 2-year-old large-breed female. She is listed as a Great Pyrenees mix but, as is often the case, it's a little hard to tell.

What we do know for sure is that Willow is a gentle dog who is ready to show a family a lot of love.

She was a very timid dog when she first arrived at the shelter but she has come out of her shell since then.

Willow has met young children and behaved very nicely. She also appears to be fine around cats.

We have walked her with many of the other dogs at the shelter and while sometimes cautious around them at first, she hasn't met one that she hasn't liked.

She loves the big boy dogs like her pal Teddy Bear, but has been fine with smaller dogs and females also. Willow doesn't care much about balls or toys but will happily run around the yard if someone runs with her!

This big girl – about 80 pounds – has beautiful eyes and is always happy to see us when we come to take her out for a walk. She appears to be house-trained and seems like she would be the perfect dog to come home to at the end of a long work day.

Willow has been at the shelter for quite a while and we would like to get her out, either by finding a foster home or an adopter for her.

Willow is spayed and current on vaccinations. For more info about Willow, or to arrange an introduction, please contact us at redwoodpalsrescue@gmail.com or leave a message on our voicemail at (707) 633-8842.

A somewhat smaller black and white dog is Oscar, a 6-year-old Queensland Heeler mix.

For the first few days after Oscar arrived at the shelter, he was very scared and would run outside when anyone went by.

One day, some switch must have flipped in little Oscar's mind and he was very happy to see everyone!

We rarely know much about a dog's background, but maybe Oscar had met some scary people in his past. He isn't the least bit timid now and is very appreciative of the regular food and walks that he receives every day!

He is always politely waiting at the front of his kennel now. One of his volunteer friends describes him this way: "This very good-natured guy has very unusual facial markings that look a bit ominous until you see his wagging tail! He has very cute round eyes. He is a little bit older, a little bit stocky, but an easy walker who likes treats and knows 'sit.' He is quite affectionate and especially loves to have his butt scratched! He is friendly and attentive, and is a no-drama type of guy. He would make an excellent pal!"

Oscar is available through the Humboldt County Animal Shelter. He is neutered, microchipped and current on his vaccinations.

More information is available at petharbor.com or by calling (707) 840-9132.

You can also email Redwood Pals at the address above as we work with the shelter dogs also and would be happy to answer your questions about Oscar or any of the other shelter dogs.

Lannisters always spay their pets!

Arya, Sansa, Tyrion, Jaime, and Bran are ready to find their forever castles!

These 12-week-old mystery breed wildlings hail from Hoopa and came into our care following a Neuter Scooter event (for more information about the traveling Neuter Scooter, check out neuterscooter.com or the K'ima:w Medical Center's Facebook page).

The siblings are a constant source of smiles for all that meet them and we're hoping to find them homes that are prepared for an abundance of energy, mischief, and cuddles.

Our adoptable dogs are available to view at 88 Sunny Brae Center, Arcata from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Please be advised that animals posted here may have applications in the process of being reviewed. If you are interested in a specific animal, please give us a call at (707) 826-7387 or come by to fill out an application. We recommend bringing your family or roommates with you to make sure it's a good fit for everyone!

All of the animals at Companion Animal Foundation have been spayed/neutered, microchipped, treated for parasites, and are up to date on their vaccines.
